

Name: Marisol Reina

Title: Coordinator of the Food Science and Technology Program at the Center for Agricultural and Food Studies UVG

Expertise: Food product and process design, formulation of highly nutritional food products, use of native ingredients, breastmilk and allergy, quality assurance systems, food safety and circular economy in agrifood systems.

Institution: Universidad del Valle de Guatemala (UVG)

Contact: fmreina@uvg.edu.gt

Bio: MSc. in Food Technology, focused on Product and Process Design from Wageningen University and Research Centre, The Netherlands. Coordinator of the Food Science and Technology Program at the Center for Agricultural and Food Studies from Universidad del Valle de Guatemala. She is currently serving as Co-PI for one of few remaining US-funded projects related to horticulture, Ag innovation, food security and agribusiness. Areas of professional interest include food product design for nutritious diets, use of native ingredients on innovative products, regenerative agriculture, food safety, ag technology for climate change adaptation and circular economy in agri-food systems.